FANCY FANCY GOES FANCY

THE TASTY MORSEL

"Chopper! Oh, Chopper!" Yakky Doodle called out. "I brought you something!" There was no answer. Yakky looked all around, but his friend was nowhere to be seen. Standing in front of Chopper's doghouse, Yakky called again, "Oh, Ch-o-p-p-e-r!"

"Huh? What?" asked Chopper, coming out of a sound sleep. "Oh, it's you, li'l feller," he added drowsily. "I was just having my extra Sunday morning sleep."

"Good!" exclaimed Yakky. "Then you haven't had breakfast yet. I'm glad, because I brought you something special for your Sunday breakfast."

"Now, ain't that cute," laughed Chopper. Then he gulped, as Yakky held out his hand, "Aw, yuh hadn't oughta done it!"

"It's a real juicy bug, Chopper, that I saved special for you," Yakky explained happily. "Go ahead, Chopper, take it," he urged. "It's yummy."

Chopper looked at the bug. "Well—uh," he began uneasily. He certainly did not want the bug, but he did not want to hurt Yakky's feelings, either.

"Go ahead," Yakky urged again.

Chopper took the bug and pretended to put it in his mouth.

"M-m-m," he said. "You're right, Yakky. That is good."

Then Chopper put his hand behind his back and opened it wide, hoping the little bug would hop out. But the bug knew very well that Chopper would not eat him, so he decided to stay around awhile for some fun. He hopped to Chopper's shoulder and then leaped to Chopper's nose.

"Oooh," Chopper groaned quietly.

"Look, Chopper," said Yakky, "there's another bug... just like the other one! Get him, Chopper!"

Chopper grabbed at the bug, but it hopped up on his ear. Then, just in time to avoid a swipe of Chopper's hand, it jumped on his head. Then... hop, hop... it traveled down his back, to the tip of his tail!

"I'll get it, Chopper!" called Yakky.

Zipl! And Yakky had the bug in his hand!

"Say," said Yakky, looking at what, to him, was a tasty morsel, "this looks just like the bug I gave you!" Then, seeing the look on Chopper's face, he added, "You didn't eat it at all, did you, Chopper?"

"No," confessed Chopper, shaking his head. "You see, Yakky—"

"You just didn't like my present," said Yakky sadly.

"Oh, yes, I did!" Chopper quickly assured him. "It's just that I—well, I wasn't hungry. But I'm very hungry now." And Chopper snatched the bug from Yakky's hand.

Once again Chopper pretended to eat the tasty morsel. Then, he put his hand behind his back, hoping that this time the little bug would leave for sure.

"If he doesn't," thought Chopper, "I'll really eat him—then he'll wish he had!"

But the little bug knew when the game was over. He jumped out of Chopper's hand and quickly disappeared in the grass.

"M-m-m-m," said Chopper, smacking his lips in pretense and with relief that the bug was gone at last.

"See, Chopper," said Yakky, "I told you it was good!" Then turning away, he said, "Now that you like them so well, I'll bring you one every day."

"Oh, no," groaned Chopper to himself.

"What did you say, Chopper?"

"Er, I said, 'Oh, do.' " Then he thought, "Now I'll have to find a new way every day to get rid of Yakky's tasty morsels without hurting his feelings!"

NUMBER 30

CATFISH

This is one of a series of information features in Gold Key Comics. Collect the whole series for useful knowledge.

The Blue Catfish of the Mississippi is a heavyweight sometimes reaching 150 lbs. They are caught on lines or in hoop-nets.

© 1963, WESTERN PUBLISHING COMPANY, INC.

The smallest catfish of all is the Brindled Madtom, found in swift streams. Stone-cat is also small. Both widely used as bait.

Large Catfish are edible and tasty. Among fresh water commercial fish, they are in demand, second only to the Buffalo fish.

Channel Catfish, the best known variety, prefers clear moving water. It can weigh as much as 20 lbs., but averages around 4.

The Sea Catfish is a salt water relative. During breeding, the male carries the fertilized eggs in his mouth, and can't eat.
